

A UNITED CALL FOR GLOBAL WATER INVESTMENT

Join the Global Water Partnership Organisation as a Sponsoring Partner

Starting 2 June 2025, the Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) of GWPO opened for new States and Governments wishing to join the Intergovernmental Organisation as members, formally called Sponsoring Partners¹. This is a significant opportunity to shape global water policy for a water-secure world.

Countries can sign the MOU in either Stockholm-Sweden, Pretoria-South Africa, and Geneva-Switzerland for States and Governments.

For enquiries or to express interest in becoming a Sponsoring Partner, please contact the GWPO Secretariat at sponsoringpartner@gwp.org

May 2025

¹ Sponsoring Partners are essentially the “member states” of the GWPO. This status does not entail a compulsory financial contribution.

Executive Summary

The Global Water Partnership Organisation (GWPO) is issuing a global invitation to all States and Governments to become Sponsoring Partners under its Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments. In a world going through unprecedented shifts in multilateral and global cooperation, declining international development finance and with countries grappling with a mounting water crisis and a changing climate, we invite and urge national leaders to unite in an unprecedented partnership to contribute to a water-secure future for all. The stakes could not be higher – and the opportunity for leadership and collective action has never been more urgent.

GWPO came into existence as an intergovernmental organisation in 2002 after eight states and two international organisations, collectively referred to as the Sponsoring Partners, signed the initial memorandum of understanding (MoU): The Kingdom of Sweden, The Kingdom of the Netherlands, The Kingdom of Denmark, The Republic of Chile, The Republic of Hungary, The Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan, The Islamic Republic of Pakistan, The Argentine Republic, The World Bank, and the World Meteorological Organization (WMO).

At their Annual Meeting in June 2024, the Sponsoring Partners recommended expanding GWPO's engagement with a broader group of countries.

The Global Water Partnership Organisation hereby invites States and Governments wishing to join GWPO as a Sponsoring Partner to sign a copy of the MoU which can be found in Annex 3, in English, which shall be deposited with the GWPO Executive Secretary, who shall send certified copies thereof to all signatories. This MoU will be opened for signature in Stockholm, Geneva, and Pretoria on 2 June 2025.

By becoming a Sponsoring Partner, States gain a seat at the table of this global water movement – with tangible benefits for their people and the world. Key advantages include an opportunity to shape global water policy; gaining access to technical expertise, knowledge and networks; increasing international visibility and leadership; and contributing to global water security. There is no obligation for Sponsoring Partners to make financial contributions, although those that are able to contribute financially to GWPO's mission and vision are encouraged to do so.

The Global Water Partnership Organisation looks forward to welcoming States as new Sponsoring Partners and working hand in hand with them towards our shared vision of a water-secure world. The challenge is great, but by uniting our political will and resources, the impact will be greater. Join us now – this is the time to act.

UNITED CALL FOR GLOBAL WATER INVESTMENTS:

GWPO INVITES GOVERNMENTS TO JOIN AS SPONSORING PARTNERS

The Global Water Partnership Organisation (GWPO) is hereby issuing a global invitation to all States and Governments to become Sponsoring Partners under its Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments. In a world grappling with a mounting water crisis and a changing climate, this call blends a formal diplomatic appeal with a visionary ambition: we urge global and national leaders to unite in a transformative alliance to accelerate progress to a water-secure future for all. The stakes could not be higher – and the opportunity for leadership and collective action has never been more urgent.

As part of the Global Transformation Agenda, GWPO invites any country wishing to join the Sponsoring Partners of GWPO to express their interest to join. The Sponsoring Partners have no obligation of financial contribution to the organisation.

GWPO came into existence in 2002 after eight states and two international organisations listed below called Sponsoring Partners signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) under international law:

- The Kingdom of Sweden
- The Kingdom of the Netherlands
- The Kingdom of Denmark
- The Republic of Chile
- The Republic of Hungary
- The Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan
- The Islamic Republic of Pakistan
- The Argentine Republic
- The World Bank (up to 2025)
- World Meteorological Organization (WMO)

1. A Visionary Global Initiative for Water Security

The Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments represents a bold new chapter in global water cooperation. For nearly 30 years, GWP has been at the forefront of advancing water security and climate resilience worldwide. Now, faced with the reality that the world remains not on track to achieve SDG 6 by 2030, with billions still lacking access to safe water and sanitation, GWP is catalysing an ambitious effort to accelerate and scale up climate-resilient water investments.

Under this Agenda, at least US$15 billion in water investments will be leveraged by 2030, backed by an initial mobilisation of US$500 million towards achievement of water security in the Global South.

A new High-Level Global Outlook Council (GOC) will steer this effort, comprised of current and former Heads of State, global leaders and high-level public and private sector representatives. Endorsed at the highest levels, the Global Transformation Agenda has already gained significant momentum: H.E. Jakaya Kikwete, former President of Tanzania, will serve as founding Co-Chair of the GOC, with leaders from G20 nations and beyond currently being mobilised.

The global water crisis requires a unified, urgent response. We now call on States and Governments everywhere to join us in this transformative journey – ensuring that water remains central to sustainable development and contributes to global stability. The Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments represents a significant opportunity to accelerate the progress that the billions currently lacking access to drinking water and sanitation are calling for in global water cooperation, building on GWP’s proven track record.

Since 2014, GWP has directly and indirectly influenced over €2 billion in water-related investments by supporting the development of investment-ready water and climate projects, strengthening institutional capacity to access climate and development finance, and improving enabling policy and planning frameworks. Since 2020, GWP has supported over 200 water-related policies, laws, institutions, instruments, and financing. These efforts have enhanced cross-sectoral coordination, while improving water decision-making and investment planning. Throughout its history, GWP has supported water sector reforms in over 90 countries and 25 transboundary basins.

2. Benefits of becoming a Sponsoring Partner

By becoming a Sponsoring Partner, States gain a seat at the table of this global water movement – with tangible benefits for their people and the world. Key advantages include:

- Shaping Global Water Policy: Sponsoring Partners form the ultimate governing body of GWPO. This role allows governments to influence global water governance priorities, strategies, and policies. Sponsoring Partners help steer GWPO’s agenda and ensure that national and regional water interests are reflected on the world stage. In practice, this means your country’s voice directly guides international water policy dialogues and investment decisions, leveraging GWPO’s status as a leading intergovernmental organisation dedicated to water governance.
- Access to Technical Expertise and Networks: Sponsoring Partners unlock access to GWPO’s vast reservoir of knowledge, technical expertise, and on-the-ground experience. GWP’s global network includes 2,800+ partner organisations in over 180 countries, spanning water authorities, experts, and civil society. This “network of networks”, the Global Water Partnership, offers a rich pool of technical guidance, best practices, and innovative solutions for water management. Partners can draw on world-class expertise – from integrated water resources management (IWRM) tools to climate adaptation strategies and transboundary water governance – to inform their national plans. With its global network of Regional and Country Water Partnerships, GWPO’s credibility as a neutral convener in the water community means Sponsoring Partners also gain access to trusted platforms for knowledge exchange and capacity development.

- International Visibility and Leadership: As a Sponsoring Partner, your government is internationally recognised as a champion of water security and climate resilience. GWPO will showcase and highlight the leadership of its Sponsoring Partners in global forums, joint publications, and high-level events, yielding enhanced visibility for your country's water and climate initiatives. Sponsoring Partners will have the opportunity to spearhead regional or thematic efforts under the Global Transformation Agenda – including participation in and leading high-level global and regional cooperation by mobilising fellow leaders to establish Heads-of-State Panels on climate-resilient water investments. Such initiatives will position Sponsoring Partners at the forefront of global solution-building. In sum, joining GWPO signals your nation's commitment to the common good, garnering international esteem and diplomatic influence.
- Contribution to Global Water Security: Perhaps most importantly, Sponsoring Partners become architects of a water-secure future. By investing political capital and expertise in this Agenda, your country directly contributes to tangible outcomes: expanded access to water security, clean water and sanitation, improved climate adaptation, and reduced impacts of water-related disasters globally. The collective impact of the efforts of the Sponsoring Partners will be measured in lives improved and progress achieved towards sustainable development. This is an opportunity to leave a legacy – to know that your nation helped safeguard the most precious resource on earth for generations to come.

3. Commitments and Responsibilities of Sponsoring Partners

Along with these benefits, Sponsoring Partners are expected to uphold key commitments and responsibilities. Becoming a Sponsoring Partner is a solemn political endorsement of the Global Transformation Agenda on climate-resilient water investments and a pledge to actively advance its objectives. Core expectations include:

- High-Level Political Endorsement: Sponsoring Partners formally endorse GWPO's vision of a water-secure world and the Global Transformation Agenda's target of increasing climate-resilient water investments. Governments are expected to champion water issues at the highest political levels – integrating water security into national development plans, and raising ambition in international arenas (UN, G20, UNFCCC COPs, etc.). This political leadership is crucial to drive the change we seek. It signals unity and resolve, showing that your government stands with others in treating water as a top priority for sustainable development and climate action.
- Resource Mobilisation and Support: While the GWPO and GWP Statutes do not impose any financial obligation, Sponsoring Partners commit to support the efforts toward the achievement of a water-secure world within their regions and countries, and globally. This may include voluntary financial contributions to GWP's core functions, its programmes, co-financing of joint initiatives, or facilitation of investment from development banks and climate funds. The Global Transformation Agenda aims to mobilise hundreds of millions of dollars and leverage billions in investments by 2030, and Sponsoring Partners play a key role in realising this goal. In practice, your government would work with GWPO and the GWP regions to identify and secure funding for priority projects (e.g. national water investment programmes and project pipelines) and help unlock innovative financing mechanisms (such as from climate funds, public-private partnerships, or blended finance mechanisms). This shared investment effort ensures that ambitions translate into tangible on-the-ground results.

- Active Participation and Governance: Sponsoring Partners are expected to actively participate in GWPO's governance and activities. At a minimum, this means attending the Annual Meeting of Sponsoring Partners (the highest decision-making body of GWPO) and contributing to consensus on strategic decisions. Sponsoring Partners also appoint representatives to key bodies – for example, they collectively appoint the GWPO Chair and Steering Committee members, guiding the organisation's strategic direction. Beyond formal meetings, active participation includes joining high-level panels or councils under the Global Transformation Agenda, collaborating with other countries and stakeholders, and sharing expertise.
- Lead Advocate Role on Global Water Management: Each Sponsoring Partner will serve as a leading advocate of water issues and problem-solver within GWPO – whether by co-hosting international water summits, piloting innovative solutions at home and sharing lessons, or rallying peer countries to close the investment gap. The effectiveness of this Agenda hinges on robust engagement from its Partners; thus, we count on each Sponsoring Partner to be an active, accountable stakeholder in our collective success.

By joining GWPO, Sponsoring Partners demonstrate the unity and resolve required to tackle the water crisis. Multilateral cooperation and mutual accountability are the bedrock of the Global Transformation Agenda – every Sponsoring Partner's contribution counts, and together we will uphold the highest standards of good governance, transparency, integrity and impact.

4. Aligning SDG 6, the 2030 Agenda, and the Paris Agreement

This call to partnership is firmly grounded in the objectives of global frameworks that your government has already pledged to uphold. Joining GWPO as a Sponsoring Partner supports and accelerates commitments towards the Global Transformation Agenda, which will accelerate progress towards the United Nations 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, especially Sustainable Development Goal 6 (SDG 6) on Water and Sanitation, as well as the Paris Agreement on climate change and related accords. Water is the lifeblood that runs through each of these agreements, and by investing in water security you simultaneously advance multiple global goals:

- Advancing Sustainable Development (SDG 6 and beyond): SDG 6 aims to “ensure availability and sustainable management of water and sanitation for all.” Today, progress on this goal is gravely insufficient – billions of people still lack safely managed drinking water or sanitation, and the world remains off-track to achieve this goal by 2030. By becoming a Sponsoring Partner, your government helps reverse this trajectory through scaled-up and accelerated action. Water underpins almost every SDG: from hunger and health to economic growth, gender equality, and peace. Improvements in water governance and access create positive ripple effects on education, public health and livelihoods. Sponsoring Partners will be at the forefront of supporting efforts to integrate water solutions into sustainable development plans, ensuring that the SDGs' promise can be fulfilled. This includes contributing to initiatives like the UN's SDG 6 Global Acceleration Framework, the UN System-Wide Strategy on Water and Sanitation, and leveraging GWPO's expertise in integrated water resources management (IWRM), which is encapsulated in SDG target 6.5, to help achieve targets on water use efficiency, ecosystem protection, and universal services. By supporting GWPO, Sponsoring Partners champion a holistic vision of development in support of the 2030 Agenda – one where water security, human well-being, and economic prosperity advance hand in hand.

- Bolstering Climate Action (Paris Agreement Adaptation Goals): Water and climate change are inextricably linked. As noted during the 2023 UN Water Conference, “more than 90% of disasters are water-related, with climate change hitting hardest through water”. Droughts, floods, and storms – intensified by global warming – are already undermining development and security worldwide. The Paris Agreement calls for strengthened resilience and adaptation to climate impacts, and water management is central to that mission. By investing in climate-resilient water infrastructure, data systems, and governance, Sponsoring Partners actively advance the Paris climate goals.
- Help communities cope with water extremes, protect ecosystems that regulate climate, and reduce disaster risks. Moreover, wise water investments contribute to climate change mitigation (for instance, healthy wetlands store carbon, and sustainable energy-water systems reduce emissions). In becoming a Sponsoring Partner of GWPO, your country aligns its climate commitments with tangible projects – from building drought-proof water supply systems to implementing early warning systems for floods. You also signal support for global compacts like the Sendai Framework for Disaster Risk Reduction, as safer water systems mean more resilient societies.

In short, Sponsoring Partners bridge the gap between water and climate policy and practice, ensuring that adaptation efforts receive the political will and financing they urgently require. This is multilateral water and climate action at its finest: collective efforts that protect vulnerable populations and safeguard our planet's future.

Overall, joining GWPO provides an opportunity to support a global movement – a powerful vehicle to achieve international goals. By joining as a Sponsoring Partner, a government does not just sign up for another initiative – it actively reinforces its commitment to achieving the very sustainable development frameworks it helped to negotiate, injecting momentum into local and global commitments that often lag behind. This alignment offers a win-win: progress in GWPO accelerates progress toward your nation's own development and climate targets, and vice versa.

5. Join Us in Transforming the Future of Water

This is a visionary appeal and a practical offer. By becoming a Sponsoring Partner, your country will help write the next chapter of global water cooperation – one defined by accelerated action, inclusivity, and hope. Together, we will mobilise the investments, innovations and institutional reforms needed to ensure every person on the planet has sustainable access to water, and that our communities are resilient to water-related threats. We will demonstrate that, even in a time of complex global tensions, nations can unite for the common good of humanity.

The Global Water Partnership Organisation stands ready to welcome new Sponsoring Partners. We invite interested governments to contact us to discuss the formal accession process (which involves signing the GWPO Memorandum of Understanding and endorsement by existing Sponsoring Partners). Our team will provide all necessary information and facilitate a smooth onboarding, so that new Sponsoring Partners can immediately start contributing to and benefitting from the network.

In closing, allow us to reiterate the historic significance of this call. Water is life – it sustains public health, food production, energy, ecosystems, and economic growth. Yet it is facing unprecedented strain. If we fail to act, water insecurity will set back development and fuel instability. But if we act together now, we can unlock a future where every nation is water secure, conflicts over water are replaced by cooperation, and the resilience of our societies is strengthened for generations to come. This is the future that the Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments envisions. It is the future that each Sponsoring Partner will help realise.

The Global Water Partnership Organisation invites you to join us on this journey of transformation. Let us forge a legacy of leadership, unity and hope in the face of adversity. Let us invest together in water as if our future depends on it – because it does.

Together, as Partners, we will transform the investment landscape for water security worldwide. Together, we will ensure a water-secure and sustainable world by 2030 and beyond.

The Global Water Partnership Organisation looks forward to welcoming new Sponsoring Partners and working hand in hand towards our shared vision of a water-secure world. The challenge is great, but by uniting our political will and resources, the impact will be greater. Together, we will shape a water-secure future.

THE GLOBAL TRANSFORMATION AGENDA ON WATER INVESTMENTS

GLOBAL TRANSFORMATION AGENDA ON WATER INVESTMENTS

In February 2025, in light of an increasing global climate emergency, and increasing challenges on water security, floods, droughts and water shortages, the GWP Steering Committee initiated the Global Transformation Agenda on Water Investments.

The Transformation Agenda includes strengthened partnerships with G20 countries, Multilateral Development Banks (MDBs), global climate finance institutions, regional financial and economic institutions, and others. Later this year, GWP and partners will also launch the Global Water Investment Programme (GIP) on water and climate resilience to mobilise €500 million, which would leverage at least USD 15 billion by 2030. The GIP will build on the successes and lessons of the Continental Africa Water Investment Programme (AIP) and similar initiatives.

As part of its evolution, GWP is now entering a new phase to reinforce its intergovernmental status and broaden its global partnerships. In this context, GWP is actively engaging with G20 nations to establish a new Host Country Agreement and develop regional GWPO Technical Hubs that will further strengthen local impact.

Key Steps in GWP's Transformation

- Invite new States and Governments to join GWPO as a Members, formally called Sponsoring Partners.
- Scale up investment in climate-resilient water security mobilising USD 500 million that will leverage at least USD 15 billion by 2030.
- Strengthen global leadership and commitment for climate resilience water security and financial sustainability through expanded partnerships with G20, Multilateral Development Banks (MDBs), and climate finance institutions.
- Enhance regional presence and impact, establishing decentralised GWPO Technical hubs at continental level in Africa, Asia, Latin America & Caribbean, and Europe.
- Establish the GWPO Transition Office in South Africa to lead the transition and relocation of GWP's global secretariat.

The Transformation Agenda was endorsed by over 150 GWP Partners from 85 Countries, and received strong support from key stakeholders, including the GWP Board (Steering Committee), the GWP Technical Committee, GWPO Secretariat staff, and the GWP Regional Partnerships. Some development partners have also expressed encouragement describing the plan as an “optimistic direction for the future” acknowledging that “GWP is on the right track.”

A Call to Global Leaders & Partners

The global water crisis requires a unified, urgent response. With escalating threats from climate change, water scarcity, and unsustainable resource use, GWP remains the leading intergovernmental organisation dedicated to water governance.

The Global Transformation Agenda represents a bold step towards a more resilient and impactful future. Endorsed by key governance bodies and partners, we call on governments, international organisations, the private sector, and civil society to join us in this transformative journey—ensuring that water remains central to global development.
